The Quick Take:

1. Planned Parenthood claims to be about choice and about women’s health.
2. But phone calls recorded earlier this year showed that to be a lie.
3. Callers seeking prenatal care were told that Planned Parenthood had nothing for them but abortion.
4. Abortion advocates, like PP founder Margaret Sanger, deny the humanity of the baby in the womb and see God’s design for motherhood as a curse.
5. In sharp contrast stands the word of God which teaches that children are God’s blessing.
6. We say thank you to self-sacrificing, God-honoring mothers!

The Commentary:

Planned Parenthood, the nation’s largest abortion provider, claims to be about choice and about women’s health. That has been the justification for federal funding provided to Planned Parenthood, and this well-worn script—that it’s all about women’s health—is endlessly parroted by the leftist news media and even the President of the United States.

But phone calls recorded earlier this year showed that to be a bald-faced lie. When investigative journalists anonymously called one Planned Parenthood facility after another to ask for prenatal care—that is care for a baby they said they planned to give birth to, they were told that Planned Parenthood had nothing for them. In one typical phone call, a clinic worker in Arizona said, “We don’t have prenatal care here... Planned Parenthood offers abortions, so they don’t offer prenatal care.”

In reality, Planned Parenthood and their ilk are not about “choice.” They are about abortion, plain and simple. On Mother’s Day, we celebrate motherhood—something entirely at odds with the mission of Planned Parenthood and other abortion advocates. These advocates deny the humanity of the baby in the womb, and see God’s design for motherhood as a curse.

This is consistent with Planned Parenthood’s founder, Margaret Sanger. Early in her career she founded a magazine called Woman Rebel, and on the masthead she put the slogan, “No Gods, No Masters.” Sanger, like all radical progressives, sought to remake society by undermining the family. Killing children in the womb is just one means to that end.

In sharp contrast stands the word of God, which says: “Behold, children are a heritage from the Lord, the fruit of the womb a reward.” So today we say, thank you to self-sacrificing, God-honoring mothers. May you be blessed for your submission to the Lord Jesus.
